How do you know that when you seek medical care, the practitioners you see are properly educated, licensed, and trained in their specialty?

During National Medical Staff Services Awareness Week (#MSPWeek®), NAMSS recognizes Medical Services Professionals (MSPs) — essential members of the healthcare team who thoroughly investigate and verify the credentials of healthcare practitioners. These dedicated professionals use their expertise in areas such as medical staff organization, accreditation, provider enrollment, regulatory compliance, and provider relations in their essential role as gatekeepers of patient safety.

Don't forget to stop by and say hello to your MSPs! For more information about NAMSS, visit NAMSS.org/MSPWeek.
